PRESIDENT JOS. F. SMITH TALKS TO YOUNG PEOPLE

Tells His Auditors in the Thirty-First Ward Last Night "You Can Do Anything You Want, Republican, Democrat or Anything Else-I Never Tried to Turn

The Thirty-first ward meetinghouse was filled to overflowing last night on the occasion of the conjoint session of the Mutual Improvement associations. President Joseph F. Smith and President Anthon H. Lund were the speakers and were listened to with rapt attention for 30 minutes after the usual time for closing.

Standard exhorted his auditors to observe a respectful attitude towards all men and manifest a spirit of couriesy and leideness generally. When one sees a dranken man wallowing in the gutter declared the speaker, one should not be tempted to kich him lower and deeper into the mire but should rather take an attitude of sympathy toward the usual time for closing.

Both speakers alluded to existing conditions, President Lund counseling his hearers to be united in all things and to stand together as one against those who sought to overthrow the

those who sought to overthrow the Church.

President Snith devoted his concluding remarks to politics. He defined the meaning of the word, affirmed that he had never sought to influence any man in his political ideas and deplored the fact that some men seemed to have politics on the rain.

They were to be pitted.

*RESIDENT SMITH'S ADDRESS.

resident Joseph F. Smith in the reface to his address endorsed the remarks of President Anthon H. Lind and exhorted the young people present to profit by the example of ancient history and the legends of mythology because he affirmed history often repeated itself. peated itself.

because he affirmed history often repeated itself.

Continuing he said that there was nothing in the world so great, grand, good and necessary as the gospet of Jesus Christ. "There is no bigger thing on earth," declared President Smith with striking emphasis, "than that which is called 'Mormonism.'" The speaker said that men might lie, blacken the characters of the followers of the gospel and speak all manner of evil against the truth, but the truth remained, "The Devil hates the truth," declared the speaker. "It is his business to fight the truth and he fights it all the time." Continuing, the speaker asserted that if the wicked, the corrupt, the vile and the unhoisy creatures of the earth were in love with the gospel it would then be finder for the saints to think that they were in danger and have fear for the outcome, but just so long as all manner of evil was spoken against them so long could the saints rest assured that they were being persecuted for righteousness sake. The wicked, stated the speaker, hate the righteous. That they were deadly opposed to righteousness, he declared, was because their own corrupt lives were in danger of being laid bare and exposed in all their hideousness through coming into contact with good men and pure women. Comparisons were odious and an unclean individual in the company of an upright man or woman suffered in comparison. President Smith then paid his respects to scoffers and those who resorted to ridicule never had nor never would make the truth null and void, for this was impossible.

BEARS HIS TESTIMONY.

BEARS HIS TESTIMONY.

BEARS HIS TESTIMONY.

President Smith then bore his testimony regarding the Prophet Joseph when he knew when a child. The Prophet he characterized as a pure, honest, Godfearing man who would never wittingly give pain to any man, one who would not have done anything against anyone except in self defense and as a last resource. The Prophet Joseph's view of things was to let every man believe as he pleases unmolested, provided he did not interfere with the rights and peace of his neighbor.

with the rights and peace of his neighbor.

From speaking of the attributes of Joseph Smith the speaker proceeded to address his hearers on fillan duty and referred touchingly to his own mother and the trials and tribulations which followed her for years throughout the time following the date of her joining the Church in Canada. The off-told story of the events at Kirtland and the subsequent expulsions from Missouri and Ilinois were dwelt upon in detail, and through them the speaker said, his mother never once complained or murmured. "They were thankful that they had their lives and the gospel." he said, "They did all this because they had received from the Lord a knowledge of the truth." Continuing, he said that his mother was a woman of faith, one who believed in prayer and that he had time and time again seen her prayers answered. prayer and that he had time and time again seen her prayers answered. Continuing he related the incidents leading up to his first mission and the testimonies he received and how, day by day, he learned to know of a surety that the Gospel is true. "There is no greater thing in life than the plan of life for the living and salvation for the dead," he said prior to exhorting the young people present to learn the truth. Gog is Truth, he said, and all that pertains to virtue, honor and all that is calculated to exalt and purify is truth. No matter how much man may ridicule, lie, mallgn and attempt to tear down, truth still remains.

ADVICE TO THE YOUNG.

ADVICE TO THE YOUNG.

The speaker said that he wanted the children to learn this and the young generally to bear this in mind. He wanted the young to honor their parents and love their neighbors. "I want you boys and girls to be broad enough to love your neighbors," said he, "and pity those who speak against the Lord's annointed. They don't need your curses; they are already cursed. We should try to lift them out of their darkness." Continuing, the veteran Church

President Smith then decreed the spirit of falsylying, backbiting and bearing false witness. He declared that if there were such in the midst of the saints that it was not mete for others to follow the example and strike back in the same manner. Their example should not be followed he asserted, rather should such be reproved. He then went on to instance men in the Church with whom he was acquainted who were the soul of honor, men who would not dream of attempting to take advantage of their fellows in business or do anyone an injury. They had never hurt anyone yet they were held up to calumy and ridicule.

WARNING TO BOYS.

WARNING TO BOYS.

Specifically addressing the boys and Specifically addressing the boys and young men present he warned them against saloons and the contracting the habit of drinking. Those who persisted in the habit, he declared would eventually become estranged from those who sought to love them, from their parents and own kin to eventually decome the associates of drunkards, gamblers and adulterers by their own choice.

gameiers and adulterers by their own choice.

The tobacco habit also was decried and every bad habit formed had to be overcome. Idiots and imbeciles were the heritage of those who persisted in bad habits and violated the laws of life said President Smith who thanked God that he had a large family every one born sound in limb and form. He desired to impress on the audience that this he said in no boasting spirit but simply that he had tried to live according to right and truth.

The speaker declared that God had blessed him and his family and not a single member had ever lacked shelter, food and shoes to their feet. "I have never robbed a man of a single penny." he declared, "and God has blessed us."

WHAT IS POLITICS?

"And now I want to say just a few words in regard to politics," said President Smith in conclusion. "You reed not be afraid, whether you are a Republican, Democrat or anything else, for I will not say anything that will trouble you.

"True politics is only another name for the wisest politics of recognition."

"True politics is only another name for the wisest policies of government, whether municipal, county, state or national. If you can find the policy that will preserve your rights, liberties, and your home from being caten up by taxation and suandered, that policy is the best all the time,

"But it is deplorable to see any man get politics on the brain, It is a terrible disease. Some men even seem to put politics above their religion, and they would sooner be eternally lost and see their church destroyed before they would modify their politics. They often are talking of something they know nothing about, and they spread dissension and trouble. sension and trouble.

NEVER TRIED TO TURN ANYONE. "I do not propose to let politics strike in on me. It is a good thing to keep politics on the surface so you can de-cide what is best to do, and to do what is what."

Taking as his text Nephi's iron rod the speaker exhorted one and ail to hold fast to the good. Then he dwelt upon the beauties of temperance for some time. While the overcoming of bad habits was a meritorious thing the speaker maintained that a man was the better off if he had no bad habits to hold him back. President Lund urged his auditors to become thinkers and to meditate on the things of God; to harbor no hard feelings against any man not to forget the Lord in prosperity when worldliness and money grabbing are prone to take

FARMING LOCAL OPTION BILL

Measure Will be Presented to the Coming Session of the Legislature.

Salt Lake Evangelical churches held a well attended temperance meeting yesterday afternoon, in the First Congregational church, Secy. Mumford of the Salt Lake Christian union told how 400 members of the young people's societies were backing up the movement to abolish the saloon, and said a local option bill would be presented to the next legislature. Rev. L. S. Bowerman of the Immanuel Baptist church early.

"The question of the anti-saloon

"The question of the anti-saloon movement is a vast one. All kinds of experiments have been tried in past years to cope with the evil. No license, high license, the dispensary and state prohibition have all been tried, but nore of those methods accomplished all that was desired. The local option-movement is one of larger scope and has been found to be more successful. Fifteen hundred saloons have been wiped out in Illinois alone in the past few months by local option. The best way of attending temperance is by a great system of educating the people up to its benefits and advantages. "Unless the moral sentiment of a community is back of local option, such begislation would not have the desired effect and would be practically nil. Big cities such as Chicago, New York or Boston are not ripe for temperance, but Salt Lake is, The temperance movement here, if properly conducted and vigorously pushed, will be crowned with success. I hope to see the day when there will be national prohibition in the United States. I hope to see the time when that curse of humanity, the saloon, is wiped off the face of this great country. We stand committed to no party or no candidate in this temperance movement in Salt Lake, but we will commit ourselves to the man who has the moral backbone to fight the saloon and fight it to the end."

Rev. P. A. Simpkin of the Phillips church said:

It is a movement for the whole people, for their betterment and their uplift, and is and ought to be above partisan polltheir betterment and their upilift, and is and ought to be above partisan polltics. It is the attempt to solve the great moral question which enters into our public life. There is no use of enacting legislation behind which there is no sentiment. Morals can be regulated by laws, but they cannot be legislated into the people. The sentiment of every right-living and good-thinking man ought to be behind the temperance movement, and they ought to indorse the values gained by advanced temperance legislation. The big brewers of the country have given their assent to the betterment of the liquor business. They acknowledged recently that part of the saloon business had fallen into the hands of unscrupulous men, men without morals. They have expressed their desire to weed those men out of the business. We think the best way is to aboilsh the saloon evil entirely.

"We believe that we can achieve legislation that will solve the saloon evil here. We think that dens and dives and low saloons—and there is no question but that they exist—can be eradicated. The temperance movement here, if successful, will be the salvare tion but that they exist—can be eradicated. The temperance movement here, if successful, will be the salvage of many lives which are annually wasted because of the poisonous stuff which unscrupulous saloon proprietors sell. Local option will not only mean a salvage of lives, but a salvage of character and finances. We ought to realize that nothing affects the scenopic life, were and finances. We ought to realize that nothing affects the economic life more than the saloon. Our greatest loss caused by the liquor interests is the loss of young men's characters. We are ready for temperance in Salt Lake. We are ready for legislation that will drive the dives and dens out of existence."

ADDRESSES THIRD WARD M.I.A.

A large and attentive audience listened to the able address of Dr. J. W. Payne at the conjoint session of the Payne at the conjoint session of the Third ward M. I. A. His subject was, "A Rôyal Occupant of a Rôyal Throne," taking the third chapter of First Corinthians for his text, and dwelling particuarly upon the words, "Ye are God's temples,;" the speaker showing that these temples were given to men of the Lord to furnish and beautify as they would. He also showed how men are left by the Creator, with the aid of the spirit that lighteth every man that cometh into the world, to make of those temples what they would, until he would come in the day of accounting to see what use had been made of them. Dr. Payne's address was most impressive, showing nialily to his audience that it was the duty of every man to make a complete and beautiful building of himself.
